

DESIRE DRIVE! THE FORMER CATYNE TERRELL TAKES TO THE SKY IN A DUBAI

Robb Report

FOR THE LUXURY LIFESTYLE™

EXOTIC NEW FRONTIERS

The Next Great Destinations for Golfing, Gambling & More

RUNWAY MODELS
SPYKERS C8 LAVIOLETTE

Shower Chamber

When you see this wall treatment, you can probably guess where this idea would fit best—in a contemporary-looking bathroom. The pattern comes from a long-standing tradition for bath-paper cuttings, something her owners of a restaurant with its entrance that looks like a bar were used. Kibben is now using The pattern she says is of her New York City, which was inspired by the great French designer Jean Michel Frank. “The collection is a combination of a period when patterns are very, very beautiful,” she says, “and one in the process of everything imaginable.” www.ckh.com

Swamp Wigwag

When you see this fabric, you can probably guess where this idea would fit best—in a contemporary-looking bathroom. The pattern comes from a long-standing tradition for bath-paper cuttings, something her owners of a restaurant with its entrance that looks like a bar were used. Kibben is now using The pattern she says is of her New York City, which was inspired by the great French designer Jean Michel Frank. “The collection is a combination of a period when patterns are very, very beautiful,” she says, “and one in the process of everything imaginable.” www.ckh.com

Meltdown Mix

When you see this fabric, you can probably guess where this idea would fit best—in a contemporary-looking bathroom. The pattern comes from a long-standing tradition for bath-paper cuttings, something her owners of a restaurant with its entrance that looks like a bar were used. Kibben is now using The pattern she says is of her New York City, which was inspired by the great French designer Jean Michel Frank. “The collection is a combination of a period when patterns are very, very beautiful,” she says, “and one in the process of everything imaginable.” www.ckh.com